

ARCTIC READING CIRCLE

ADVENTURE

AUG 2020

AHOY, EXPLORERS

YOUR JOURNEY BEGINS HERE

Welcome to the second edition of the Arctic Reading Circle magazine. Initially a reading club, it has since transitioned into a magazine to showcase artworks and writing pieces by young readers. Each piece is inspired by a book, in hopes that this can help kids expand their reading lists in a fun and engaging way.

Our theme of the month is Adventure: we were inspired by the thrilling quests and journeys embarked by ordinary characters as they discover strength in themselves. Some of the stories we read took place in the unknowns of a fantastical world, while others ventured around places on our own familiar Earth.

Throughout this magazine, you will journey across vast mythical realms, from diving the depths of the deep sea to navigating fiery fantasy lands. Wherever you find yourself exploring, we wish you happy reading!

Sincerely,

Jennifer, Christina, Andrew

ADVENTURE

BY KATHLEEN WU

noun

an unusual and exciting, typically hazardous, experience or activity

Everyone knows what adventure is. Yet, not many are interested in reading the genre itself. This selection of short stories, book reviews, art, and many more is an assortment of all that the adventure genre can inspire and create.

This genre is defined by a strong element of danger. It features a fast-paced, action-packed plot in which the hero has to complete a quest or a task in a short amount of time. The adventure story usually takes place elsewhere, and uses maps, intriguing backgrounds, and antiquities to interest the reader. This epic journey culminates in a thrilling climax for readers of all ages and interests. The adventure genre is built around our desire to search for “more” in our lives. More meaning, more excitement, and sometimes more treasure. It stretches into the mysticism of the unknown and works as pure escapism for those reading. Aside from being an exciting genre, it also has many subtopics, including Magic Adventure, an area characterized by more extraordinary events than classic adventure tales since the story is not confined to reality; Robinsonade, where the protagonist must learn to survive alone on a desert island with limited resources and is later ambivalent to returning to society; and Survival, a type of story that resembles the Robinsonade but doesn't take place upon a deserted island.

The Arctic Reading Circle has a group of students from all ages that have created pieces of all kinds for the readers. The participants of this student-organized reading circle have set forth their hard work and placed them into the form of various engrossing reading activities. After a month of group work, the following pieces are the fruits of our labour!

Please enjoy!

BOOKS WE READ

THE BOY WITH A HATCHET

The last thought I had before the tornado of pain twirling in my chest consumed my entire body was “I hope the boy survives.” You see, I’ve never had much of a life. You’d think someone in their mid-forties would have a family but all I’ve ever had was a small cottage in the Rocky Mountains of Canada.

I like it there. I like watching the deer roam around and the birds flying overhead. I like the mountains, sometimes covered in snow and sometimes towering majestically over a beautiful turquoise lake. I like being alone in Mother Nature with my little plane and I don’t mind sometimes taking a passenger along with me. When I got a call from the airport in New York about a boy who was going to visit his father, I agreed to take him immediately. I don’t exactly know why -- I think I just wanted to do a little good in the world, even if it’s only bringing this boy to his parent.

When he was getting on the plane, I saw that he had a neat looking hatchet hanging from his belt and I was about to comment on it when he moved his hand to cover it. Maybe he was embarrassed? Why would a boy just have a hatchet hanging from his belt?

Anyways, while I was flying my plane for this boy, I suddenly had this impending sense of doom, kind of like the world was ending. I didn’t know what to expect from, but I taught the boy how to fly the plane just in case. After he took the wheel, knuckles white from concentration, I started to have this ache in my shoulder. It got worse and worse until it felt like someone was taking a hot knife and stabbing me in my shoulder. After that, everything felt like it was lit on fire. My stomach churned and my shoulder hurt uncontrollably.

“I hope the boy survives.”

HATCHET – A REVIEW

Hatchet takes place in the wilderness of Canada. The book starts off with Brian flying in a two-seat bush plane with a single pilot, heading off to visit his father. After his mother had an affair, his parents got a divorce, so every year, Brian gets to visit his father. During the plane ride, the pilot has a heart attack. Luckily, before he died, he showed Brian how to fly the plane. With Brian's newfound flying skills, he manages to steer the plane into a lake and barely survives. Around the lake, he finds food sources, and learns how to hunt, fish, start a fire, and build a shelter, all starting from nothing but a hatchet.

One of the things that I enjoyed about this book was Brian's character development. Through sheer effort and basic knowledge, he turns from a spoiled city boy to a wilderness professional. At first, he has no idea how to even sustain himself, but by the end of the book, he is so well-prepared that when a man comes to rescue him, he actually manages to offer a large meal for both of them to share. This was because he had gained the ability to hunt birds and rabbits, fish, and gather berries, along with being able to retrieve the survival pack in the broken plane deep in the lake. This helps inspire the reader because even if the reader is just a normal person like Brian was before, they believe that they can end up like Brian after the story -- adaptable, strong, and tough. I also liked this book because Brian experiences many realistic ups and downs, such as being hit by a tornado and being trampled by a moose, or cooking food and finding a survival pack.

By Ethan Cui

“20,000 Leagues Under the Sea” by Jules Verne was written more than two hundred years ago and is told from the first-person perspective of Professor Aronnax. The other main characters in this book are Conseil (the professor’s manservant), Ned Land (a Canadian harpooner), and Captain Nemo (the commander of the Nautilus). Together, they go on adventures aboard the Nautilus and travel for 20,000 leagues, which is about twice around the earth.

Before his journey through the sea, Professor Aronnax was a scholar and studied marine animals in his home country, France, with Conseil. But then, he heard news of the Nautilus which was said to be a monster. The professor hurried to board the Abraham Lincoln, believing that the monster capable of destroying ships was most likely a narwhal. On board, the two met hot-blooded Ned Land who couldn’t wait to harpoon the Nautilus and sell its oil. The professor and the Canadian soon became fast friends.

In the sea, they began chasing the destructive animal. They tried to hit it with the harpoon, but it kept on bouncing off. They then tried to shoot it, but it also bounced off! Later on, Professor Aronnax and his manservant fell overboard, but got rescued by Ned Land after almost dying of exhaustion. They soon found out that they were aboard the destructive animal and went inside. However, they got imprisoned aboard and were not allowed out of the craft. After a while, they met up with the Captain, who introduced himself as Captain Nemo.

Throughout their journey, the three friends visited underwater forests and Atlantis, the old sunken city. They also reached the North Pole where, at one point, they got trapped and nearly died from the shortage of air. But, they managed to survive.

Before long, the hot-blooded harpooner decided that this was enough and organized a successful escape with Professor Aronnax and Conseil. I’m not going to spoil the ending, so read it for yourselves!

NIM'S ISLAND – A REVIEW

BY ROGER AND MELISSA LAI

Nim's Island is an adventure book packed with many jaw-dropping, disasterful events and extraordinary characters such as Nim - An 11 year old girl, Jack - Nim's single father, Alexandra Rover - A famous author, Selkie - A protective, yet silly and comedic sea lion, Fred - A coconut loving Iguana, and The Troppo Tourists - The bad guys.

This book is short and light, and in our opinion, serves as the perfect vacation read. It is full of adventures and quirky animals which have aroused our interest in coral reefs, sea turtles, sea horses and other marine creatures. This book got us hooked on the first page which led to us reading way past bedtime. We will definitely recommend this refreshing read to all our friends.

TINTIN COLOURING PAGE

Created by Belgium artist Hergé, The Adventures of Tintin is a series of comics following the journeys of the eponymous reporter and his dog Snowy. Together with the hot-tempered Captain Haddock and two airhead detectives, the crew travel around the world in their attempts to stop crime.

ALEX RIDER: STORMBREAKER

BY TRISTAN PAN

“Alex Rider” is a fast-paced action and adventure book written by Anthony Horowitz.

Alex’s Uncle has just died in a car accident and the only person he now has is Jack Starbright, his caretaker and babysitter. He investigates the death of his uncle, finding it fishy since he knows his uncle always wears a seatbelt when driving. Finding himself in the middle of a group of terrorists, Alex must outsmart the people who want him dead. The government has given him the technology, but only he can provide the courage. Should he fail, every child in England will be murdered in cold blood. Point Blanc.

A scene of Alex breaking into the Storm Breaker compound.

The story takes place all over the world. Alex travels to England, America, and France over the course of various missions from MI6. He is determined to save the people who are in danger from either SCORPIA, infamous villains, or even a famous singer. Behind all this, however, he has one real purpose. To find out the history of his family, who his parents were, and why his uncle had been killed.

My favorite character was the assassin Yassen Gregorovich, the main antagonist who had killed Alex’s uncle. He was one of the top spies for the criminal corporation SCORPIA, standing for Sabotage, Corruption, Intelligence, and Assassination. Throughout the series, Alex and Yassen have many clashes together, usually starting with Yassen attempting to kill Alex.

I would recommend this story to people who are interested in action and adventure. I would also give this book five out of five stars.

THAT PLACE WE CALL HOME

By Tinney Mak

Charlotte clambered over the side of the canal and collapsed onto the ground. The laughter of the others had disappeared as soon as she'd jumped into the water, but her relief was immediately replaced by a feeling of dread. The canal wall on the other side was too high for her to climb back over to the Port.

She stood up and looked around, trying to stay calm. In front of her, there were structures made of twisted branches and foliage, a stark difference from the Patisserie Port with its cobblestone paths and cream-colored buildings. The Orchard... it was the place her mom had always warned her about.

"Thieves, con men, and black-market dealers," her mom had said. "That's where they make their home. It's where the poor turn into beggars and beggars turn into criminals."

Charlotte sighed and glanced at her watch. It was mid-afternoon already — if she wanted to get home, she had to start moving. She headed towards the structures, trampling over tall grass and overgrown weeds. She'd just passed under a curtain of vines, wrinkling her nose at the cloying smell of rotting fruit, when there was movement from behind her.

She whirled around. Standing in front of her were a boy and a girl, both around her own age. They were holding satchels and wore clothes made of a homespun material, dusty leather boots, and friendly expressions that put Charlotte slightly more at ease.

The boy gave her a little wave. "Are you new around here?" he asked.

Charlotte nodded, not sure how else to answer. The boy grinned, exchanging a thrilled glance with the girl beside him.

"I see," he said. "There's been a lot of people coming in from The Garden these days, so we've been going around trying to recruit them."

"Recruit?" Charlotte asked.

"Huh, I guess it really is different in The Garden," the girl said. "Out here, there's power in numbers. The Greens have already taken in a bunch of newcomers. Though, of course, no one's got use for dead weight. I'm Quince, by the way. And that's Clementine."

"You can call me Clem though," the boy said. "So, you wanna join us?"

"Wait," Charlotte burst out. "I-I'm not actually from The Garden. I just need help getting back to the Port."

The smile disappeared off Clem's face and Quince blinked in surprise.

"You're from the Patisserie Port?" she asked, her voice flat.

Charlotte nodded warily. "I fell into the canal and couldn't get back to the other side."

"That's expected," Quince said under her breath.

Charlotte waited for her to say something else, but both Clem and Quince stayed silent.

"Well, I'll be going now, if that's all," Charlotte said, hoping to escape before the tension escalated. She turned around, but before she could take a step forward, a figure detached itself from the shadows.

A Fire - Adventures of Tintin

Follow Tintin, a Belgian reporter, and his dog Snowy as they venture on dangerous, exciting, and action-packed trips around the world. The Adventures of Tintin is a comic series.

B Air - Airborn

Matt Cruse is a cabin boy on the Aurora, a huge airship that sails hundreds of feet above the ocean, ferrying wealthy passengers from city to city. It is the life Matt's always wanted; convinced he's lighter than air, he imagines himself as buoyant as the hydrium gas that powers his ship. One night he meets a dying balloonist who speaks of beautiful creatures drifting through the skies. It is only after Matt meets the balloonist's granddaughter that he realizes that the man's ravings may, in fact, have been true, and that the creatures are completely real and utterly mysterious.

C Water - Island of the Blue Dolphins

Every kid thinks about running away at one point or another; few get farther than the end of the block. But young Sam Gibley runs far away -- all the way to the Catskill Mountains of upstate New York. In a spellbinding, funny account, Sam learns to live off the land, and grows up a little in the process. No reader will be immune to the compulsion to go right out and start whittling fishhooks and befriending raccoons.

D Earth - My Side of the Mountain

In the Pacific there is an island that looks like a big fish sunning itself in the sea. Around it, blue dolphins swim, otters play, and sea elephants and sea birds abound. Once, Indians also lived on the island. And when they left and sailed to the east, one young girl was left behind. This is the story of Karana, the Indian girl who lived alone for years on the Island of the Blue Dolphins. It is not only an unusual adventure of survival, but also a tale of natural beauty and personal discovery.

The Hero's Journey

BY BILL YAN

The Hero's Journey is a template, or monomyth, that is used by many action stories. The epics of old followed this format, and nowadays many movies and books do too! Keep reading to find out about this journey.

1. ORDINARY WORLD

This is the Exposition. The hero is happy, and doing his ordinary routine.

2. THE CALL

External tension result in a crisis for the hero. This crisis forces the hero to leave his ordinary world.

3. REFUSAL

The hero doesn't want to be a hero. They try to ignore the call, however eventually they are forced to answer.

4.

The than and m

12. RETURN

The hero returns home with the treasure. Often, as with great heroes, they will use the treasure to help others. The hero's life has been transformed by this event.

11. THE RESURRECTION

The hero, pursued by enemies, faces a final challenge where everything is at stake. The hero often dies, but is reborn partway through the battle, and using all of their skills, defeats the villain.

10. THE ROAD BACK

Thought it was over? No! With the reward comes the danger of losing it. The hero is pursued by the enemy back into the ordinary world.

4. MEETING THE MENTOR

A mentor, someone more experienced than the hero, gives them special training and magical weapons to defeat the villain.

5. CROSSING THE THRESHOLD

The Hero crosses into the special world and has to adapt to new rules.

6. TESTS, ALLIES, AND ENEMIES

The hero undergoes a series of trials that use all their skills. The hero often fails some of the tests. Along the way, the hero also makes friends, and enemies.

9. THE REWARD

As a result of overcoming their fear, the hero earns some kind of reward. It can be money, fame, power, or some special ability, but this is what makes the hero a true hero.

8. THE ORDEAL

An epic battle ensues! The hero and his allies face their greatest fear and only win/escape by a miniscule amount.

7. THE APPROACH

The hero and his allies make plans, practice teamwork, and hone their fighting skills to get ready for the main antagonist.

The Phantom Tollbooth

A review by Jason Mak

“The Phantom Tollbooth” by Norton Juster is an adventure-packed book about a boy named Milo who doesn’t find enjoyment in life. One day, when he arrives back from school, he finds a mysterious package in his room. On the side of the package, there is an envelope which simply says, “For Milo, who has plenty of time.” Inside the package, he finds a tollbooth, three precaution signs, some coins, and a book of rules and traffic regulations. After following the instructions, he gets into his toy car, inserts the coin, and drives through the Phantom Tollbooth into an unknown land. There, he embarks on a journey with his friends Tock the watchdog and the Humbug to save the two princesses Rhyme and Reason.

I really enjoyed reading this book because it was very interesting. Milo travels to many different places and encounters a lot of people. For example, Milo first meets the Whether Man who speaks fast and repeats everything several times. I also enjoyed this book because some of the things that people say in the book are really creative. For example, when Milo meets the Whether Man, the Whether Man says, “Expectations is the place you must always go to before you get to where you’re going. Of course, some people never go beyond Expectations.”

My favorite part of this book was when Milo met the .58 boy because it was very creative. The boy is only 58% of a person because, according to him, in an average family, there are 2.58 people, and he is the .58 in his family.

Overall, “The Phantom Tollbooth” is an amazing book full of creativity that pulled me in with fascinating and interesting characters. I highly recommend it to readers of all ages, especially adventure-lovers.

Percy Jackson was a teenager who had experienced many scary things ever since he was a child. After getting expelled from countless schools, he joined the Yancy Academy boarding school with his friend Grover. They were going to go on a school field trip with their Latin teacher Mr. Brunner. Because Mr. Brunner was Percy’s favorite teacher, he thought the trip wouldn’t be that bad. But, he was wrong. Things go awry and he’s forced to kill his math teacher-turned-monster. However, everyone seems to have their memories erased and acts like nothing happened.

Percy Jackson and the Olympians

A review by Doris Huang

When his mom finds out, she sends Percy with Grover to Camp Half-Blood where he finds out that he is a demigod and his father is Poseidon. There, Grover is revealed to be a satyr and Percy meets Annabeth, a demigod daughter of Athena. Before he can settle down, Percy is accused of stealing Zeus' VERY VERY VERY, EXTREMELY important lightning bolt. He sets out on a quest across the country to reach Los Angeles and travel into the Underworld.

had to battle monsters and gods like Medusa and Hades. My favourite character was Grover because he was funny and cared a lot for his friends.

I had a lot of fun reading this book because of its interesting characters and adventure. I recommend this to people who are looking for an action-packed story!

I really liked this book because there was a lot of action and adventure. Percy, Annabelle, and Grover made a good team as they travelled across the country. They also showed a lot of courage when they

BOOK REVIEWS

A How-To

Introduce the book

Tell us the title, the author and genre

Blurb

- In 4-5 sentences, provide a brief overview of the plot
- Introduce the main characters and the problem they're facing

Be careful not to give spoilers or reveal the ending!

Settings/characters

- Tell us where the story takes place
- Do the characters travel? Is it a new world? Is there magic? Describe it to us in 1-2 sentences!

Can be combined into blurb if you wish

My favorite part was...

- The characters?
- The plot?
- The worldbuilding?
- The writing?
- Something else?

Tell us what's good :)

My least favorite part was...

- This is your chance to critique the author
- Everyone has their own opinions, don't be afraid if yours is different!

Please be nice in your critique. Remember, authors are people too!

Recomendations: Read if you liked...

- eg. If you like fast-paced action novels with a dash of humour, this book is for you!
- eg. If you liked reading Percy Jackson and Harry Potter, you will LOVE this book!

Pretend you are trying to convince your best friend to read this book!

I give this book __ stars.

EXPERT TIPS

Tried-and-true tricks to get you started

Length

- Reviews should be around 100-250 words. If you really want to, you can go up to 500

Quality over Quantity!

Add your own voice

- Add in our voice, your sass, your humour! Reading the review should be like reading a story or holding a conversation
- Don't be afraid to change up the review structure if you feel it's necessary. The elements are just there to guide you

Make it your own!

Finding Inspiration

- Browse on Goodreads - search up a book, and scroll all the way down to the review section. Here, you'll find reviews of varying lengths, formats, and voices
- If you find yourself hooked by their review, ask yourself, "What did they do well? Can I incorporate those elements into my review?"
- If you are stuck on writing, need advice, or help editing, we encourage you to talk to a writing mentor! We promise, we don't bite :)

If all else fails, keep it simple!
